

George Wilson is Head of English Programmes in France.

Our English Programmes teams support education systems to ensure the highest standards of English language and learning. This involves working with:

- individual teachers through our TeachingEnglish website
- educational establishments, such as schools and universities
- industry bodies
- NGOs
- ministries of education

George has many years of experience teaching in higher-education institutions in France and Australia, and holds an MA in Comparative Education.

His research focuses on inclusion and policies for multilingual practices. He is the author of a report into Breton and Welsh immersion programmes published in the academic journal Current Issues in Language Teaching.